Teams Chosen For The All-Star Game July 6th

By HENRY MLEMORE (United Press Staff Correspondent) New York, June 27 (U.P.)—Picture of a man reading the Sunday sports pages: Boston—War Admiral set to race Seabiscuit on Wednesday: This is getting to read like a headline out of Joe Miller's joke book. It was a good gag the first time it was pulled, but so was the one about the chicken crossing the road. The next news from Boston, I suppose, will be that War Admiral has come up with an ache in his pitching arm, or that Seabiscuit has asked to be excused because it's mald's afternoon off, or that owner Sam Riddle doesn't think the Admiral should run because the sun is too bright, the breeze too soft, the birds singing too sweet, or something like that. One thing's a cinch, though—if they don't run this time they never will. Because one more year and both horses will be so old they'll be running under the colors of the Townsend plan.

Long Branch, N. J.—Max Baer signs to fight Joe Louis in September: Fourteen hospitals already are bidding for the X-ray rights to Max Baer, who will train for the fight at a prominent hospital here so that he will feel right at home when he goes back to it after the bout. Promoter Mike Jacobs is going to advertise the fight for 15 rounds, which proves he has a swell sense of humor.

No one can figure out why Baer wants the fight unless it's because he is jealous of all the publicity Schmeling got for being knocked out so quickly, and figures he can better the German's time in hitting the floor. Well, maybe he can, but he is going to nearly have to come in crawling. Max will be on his back so much his seconds will have to have a sky-writer flying overhead, writing his instructions in smoke.

Wimbledon—Mrs. Helen Willis Moody rallies to defeat Mrs. Bobbie Heine Miller of South Africa, 8-6, 6-4; in her good days Mrs. Moody could have beaten the likes of Mrs. Miller 6-0, 6-0, without using anything but her paint brush. And if you have ever seen any of Mrs. Moody's paintings you know that she wasn't very skillful with that implement. I hope Mrs. Moody wins the title, because she is just about my age and it gives me the creeps to constantly read where athletes of that age are too old to run, to have any strength or be any good. If athletes, who keep in shape, fall apart at that age, what sort of condition must I be in?

Rumson, N. J.—Ch. Biene V. Elbebogen Se Sumbula, a boxer, among best of breed winners at Monmouth County Kennel Club show: *Here Ch. Biene V. Elbebogen Se Sumbula! Where's that dog done to? Thank goodness, when I was a dog fancier in Georgia, every dog I had was a mutt with such original names as Rex, Rover, Spot, Ben, Jack and Major. If I had had a dog named Ch. Biene V. Elbebogen Se Sumbula, the mutts would have eaten every scrap of food off his plate before I could have gotten his name out of my mouth to call him, and when I say scraps of food, I mean scraps, because that's what we fed 'em.

City League Managers Meet In H. S. Tonight

The Mahanoy City WPA City Baseball League managers will meet this evening at 7:45 o'clock in the Mahanoy City High School. This meeting is important due to the fact that President Michael Dixon would like to put the Regal & Blum and Ellen-gowan issue before all managers. It is understood that both teams are in demand to be admitted once more to the City League. Fans are the biggest answer for these teams being admitted. Baseball fans of Mahanoy City want better baseball and it is up to the City League to see that the fans are given just that.

TONY GALENTO TO TRAIN IN PHILADELPHIA VICINITY

Philadelphia, June 27 (U.P.)—Tony Jacobs, manager of Two-ton Joe Galento, visits Philadelphia today to arrange a training site for the range, N. J., heavyweight who meets in Henry Lewis, the light heavyweight champion from Pittsburgh, in 15-round bout at Municipal stadium July 13.

Two sites, one in New Jersey and the other in suburban Philadelphia, reportedly are under consideration. Galento will arrive here later this week to start training.

A decisive victory for Galento in his bout would start negotiations for meeting of the Newark nightstick and heavyweight, champion Joe Louis, was said.

GENE VENZKE MARRIED

Hollywood, Calif., June 25 (U.P.)—Gene Venzke, former University of Pennsylvania mlf runner, and Miss Margaret Eisenhower of Reading, Pa., were married Thursday in the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, the Rev. J. J. McCoy, who performed the ceremony, said today.

The couple will leave in a few days in a honeymoon trip through the east. They are staying at the home of John R. Kennedy, a friend of the bride.

New York, June 27. (U.P.)—The amazing Cincinnati Reds came up within another surprise today when they landed five men on the National League all-star team for the fifth annual joust with an American League picked team at Cincinnati on Wednesday, July 6.

The National squad of 23 players, picked by a written vote of the eight managers, was announced by president Ford Frick. The team will be managed by Bill Terry, New York Giants' pilot. The honor goes to him automatically because he piloted last year's National League champions. It will be the third time Terry has managed the National League All-Stars.

Cincinnati's five all-star players are catcher Ernie Lombardi, pitchers Johnny Vander Meer and Paul Derringer. First baseman Frank McCormick and outfielder Ival Goodman. All are likely to participate in the game unless Terry deems it unfair to work two pitchers from the same club.

To the Reds also goes the honor of placing the only two rookies on the club. Vander Meer, of no-hit, no-run fame and McCormick, the classy right-handed first baseman.

The complete squad follows: Catchers (3)—Gaby Hartnett, of the Cubs; Ernie Lombardi, Reds; Gordon Phelps, Dodgers.

Pitchers (6)—John Vander Meer, and Paul Derringer, Reds; Bill Lee, Cubs; Jim Turner, Bees; Carl Hubbell, Giants; Mace Brown, Pirates. Infielders (7)—Frank McCormick, Reds; Billy Herman and Stan Hack, Cubs; Arky Vaughan, Pirates; Leo Durocher and Cookie Lavagetto, of the Dodgers; Tony Cucinello, Bees.

Outfielders (7)—Joe Medwick, Cardinals; Hershel Martin, Phillies; Ival Goodman, Reds; Mel Ott, Joe Moore and Hank Leiber, Giants; Lloyd Waner, Pirates.

Manager: Bill Terry, Giants. Coaches: Bill McKechnie, Reds, and Frank Frisch, Cardinals.

Batting practice pitchers: Syl Johnson, Phillies, and Clyde Shoun, Cardinals.

Batting practice catcher: Is Bill Hershberger, Reds.

American League Team

Chicago, June 27. (U.P.)—Despite their slump the New York Yankees again led American League player nominations for the sixth annual all-star game at Cincinnati July 6 in a roster announced today by Will Harbridge, president of the league.

The world champions landed six men on the 1938 squad but for once it won't be dominated by Yankee sluggers.

Among the siege gun hitters were Earl Averill, Cleveland's veteran outfielder who now leads both leagues with an average of .390, Cecil Travis, Washington shortstop, Jimmy Foss of Boston, Charley Gehring, Detroit second baseman who has played in all five games, and Joe Cronin of Boston.

Highlights Of Games Yesterday In Major Leagues

New York, June 27. (U.P.)—Only five pitchers ever won more than 200 games for the New York Giants and today Carl Hubbell, 35-year-old southpaw from Oklahoma, was one of them.

The "meal ticket" of Giant manager Bill Terry joined Christy Mathewson, Joe McGinnity, Amos Rusie and Rube Marquard on the "200 or more" honor roll when he beat the Chicago Cubs 5-1 yesterday.

He left 10 Chicago batsmen stranded on the basepaths. The Giants got only six hits off the combined offerings of French, Lee and Root, but they bunched them. Feature of the game was the home run of Bob Seeds, purchased from Newark of the International league last week. It was a 475-foot, wallop that just touched the tip of outfielder Reynolds' glove and rolled to the deep-center-field club-house steps.

The victory enabled the Giants to increase their National league lead to two games over the Cincinnati Reds who split a double-header with Philadelphia. The Reds left 11 men stranded as they dropped the opener 10-3. Klein and Weintraub homered for Philadelphia. In the nightcap the Reds won 8-5 although out hit 14-13. Craft hit a homer for Cincinnati and Paul Derringer hung up his 10th victory.

Brooklyn and St. Louis played to a 1-1 standoff in five innings before rain washed out their scheduled double-header. The downpour also forced postponement of the Pittsburgh-Boston twin bill.

The New York Yankees humbled the Detroit Tigers 10-3 behind the six hit hurling of Monte Pearson. Washington took a twin-bill from the St. Louis Browns, scoring 9-1 in the opener and 7-2 in the aftermath. The Chicago-Philadelphia double-header also was postponed because of rain.

New Post Office Building Dedicated Saturday With Appropriate Ceremonies

masters; a tallman rose, Rev. Mr. Brewster, and pink carnations, other guests.

After dinner, the parade formed at the post office. Headed by the Eagles' Band, the postal representatives paraded west on Centre street to Catawissa street, south on Catawissa street to Mahanoy street, east on Mahanoy street to Main street, north on Main street to Pine street and east on Pine street to the new post office building.

The program opened with the national anthem by the band and the raising of the flag. Attorney Dolphin, in the role of chairman, then reminded the assemblage that the occasion was "destined to be a memorial in the history of Mahanoy City." He recalled that the current year is the 75th anniversary of the incorporation of the borough and that it was a most appropriate time for the post office dedication ceremonies.

He then introduced Rev. Mr. Brewster, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, who offered the invocation and continued, with his most interesting address, after which he presided at the installing of the cornerstone of the building.

Postmaster Guinan was then introduced by the chairman. Attorney Dolphin paid a splendid tribute to the splendid record of Postmaster Guinan and his interest and activity in civic affairs, after which Mr. Guinan gave a most delightful resume of the local postal history.

General Black's Address
General Black said in part: "I am glad to be here today for the purpose of participating with the citizens of Mahanoy City in the ceremonies incident to the dedication of your new Federal building. There is a patriotic inspiration in occasions such as this. Our minds turn to the great men and women who founded our country, gave form and substance to our national and state governments and pledged their lives, their fortunes and their sacred honor to the principles of liberty. They built for us a government founded on high ideals, sound laws and equal opportunity, and it is our duty to see that this rich heritage is handed down to our children."

"When the history of the present era is recorded, the Public Works Program, which made this building we are dedicating today possible, will be recognized as one of the most important factors, if not the greatest single factor, in terminating the economic chaos which threatened our country when our great President and leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, took office on that fourth day of March, in 1933. In inaugurating the great Public Works Program of the present administration and carrying it through in the face of vigorous opposition and hostile criticism, President Roosevelt left no stone unturned to assure that prosperity would return to every section and corner of the nation. He guarded carefully against sectional or one-sided recovery."

"Today we are enjoying the fruits of the wise policies enacted under the able guidance of President Roosevelt. Our banks are sound and solvent, industry has been revived, the farm market has been rescued from ruinous prices, and the laboring people, as well as those of other pursuits, are enjoying a greater share of prosperity than they were at the beginning of this administration. The results that have been attained amply justify President Roosevelt's faith in democracy and the people's faith in his ability to solve their problems."

"Getting back to the new Federal building which we are dedicating today, this is but one of several hundred of new post office buildings that are being constructed throughout the country under the present administration's post office building program. This Mahanoy City project was authorized under the act of Congress of August 12, 1935, at which time $88,000 was allotted for the acquisition of a site and the construction of a building. A $20,000 increase authorized August 25, 1937, made a total of $108,000."

"All who have been concerned in the construction of this building are to be congratulated, as this beautiful edifice is an important addition to the many attractions of Mahanoy City." At this juncture he paid tribute to the efficiency of William T. Sutton, Nesepeck contractor who erected the building; to William Rambo, superintendent of construction, and John J. Murray, government engineer, in charge, and then continued by saying: "It is more than that—for with its modern equipment and commodious proportions it becomes a place of utility wherein may be transacted your affairs of commerce and industry, of heart and home, though that never-failing medium, the United States mails. It is, I should say, a monument to our great President, who, in carrying out his far-seeing plans for the restoration and recovery of our national prosperity, seized the opportunity to provide employment and stir the tides of business with a building program. Thus he served both the post office needs and the greater need for getting people to work. Praise is also due those who in any way assisted in presenting the need for adequate postal facilities for this community. I mention in partioular Congressman James Glidea and Senator Joseph F. Guffey.

Later, in speaking of the postal service he said: "We in the postal service are all engaged in a great public service that is of vital interest to every citizen of the nation. It was organized for the public good, and the dissemination of information, principally through the transportation and delivery of mail matter. Its founders contemplated that its benefits should be offered on an equal basis to all. Throughout the history of the country that fixed policy has been maintained by all administrations of the government. In the course of its development the postal service has taken on other activities to meet the increasing demands of the population. I think every American has a justifiable pride in the postal service of the United States. Everyone connected with the service seems to be imbued with the importance of its position in the affairs of the nation, envious of its reputation, and intensely interested in maintaining its prestige."

"Obviously all of the good, and all of the progress in the post office, is not confined to the term of this administration. I fully appreciate the splendid accomplishments of many of those who have served in the past, and you and I owe them a debt of gratitude. The department has been built on a firm foundation and its progress has been steady, so I say again in all sincerity—many thanks to those who have gone before us."

At this juncture Mr. Black reviewed developments in the department brought about by Postmaster General James J. Farley, whom he lauded as "a true American." In detail he explained what had been accomplished during the present administration. He explained the consolidation of departments and bureaus which effected greater efficiency in service and a great saving of governmental funds.

In the final phase of his address he said: "Good will of the patrons and good will of the employees are almost on a parity in determining policies to be followed in the management of either public or private business. I think I can say without fear of contradiction that the postal service is more efficient today than at any time in its history and that the employees are better satisfied." Sometime later he informed his hearers that "Congress has provided funds for about 1400 new post office buildings. More than 800 have been completed or are in course of construction, and the remaining projects will be under contract within a short time. Every state, territory and insular possession has shared in this building program."

"We delivered the bonus bonds and handed the cash payment of those bonds to the veterans. We registered 29 million workers for the Social Security Board and only recently successfully undertook the distribution and collection of questionnaire forms in connection with the census of the unemployed."

"In conclusion, I want to place emphasis upon the fact that the main purpose and function of the Post Office Department has always been to render the best possible service to everyone and it has been the aim of the department through constant research and study to determine how this service would be improved. It has been a pleasure to participate in this dedication and in turning over this building to the citizens of Mahanoy City I want to express the hope that in making use of its facilities you will enjoy the finest mail service that this community has ever had."

The address was received with much applause, after which Postmaster Guinan invited the public to inspect the post office, thanked everyone who had in any way contributed to the success of the program, and announced a meeting of county postal employees at the Elks' Club.

The interesting program was heard in every section through an amplifying system installed through the courtesy of Councilman Thomas James.

Dr. Brewster's Remarks
The first speaker was the Rev. E. H. Brewster, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal Church, who followed an invocation with the following remarks: "The dedication of this building today calls to mind the central fact of life so far as usefulness and happiness are concerned—the fact of service. This building is not to be a commercial institution, designed to make profit. It is an institution of service, designed to render the greatest possible service at the lowest possible cost. Whenever we pass this way and look upon this simple but beautiful structure, we will be reminded of some of the greatest words ever spoken: 'He that would be great among you shall be servant of all.'"

"We dedicate this post office today to goodwill. Goodwill is fostered by acquaintance, by mutual understanding and that is what a post office is for. This will be a nerve center of communication and the sum of goodwill will be increased as this building continues in use. A man who didn't like another, was once asked 'Wouldn't you like to meet the gentleman you dislike?' 'No,' he replied, 'if I did, I might like him.' Here misapprehensions and partial judgments about others will be dispelled as the tide of communications flow through these halls."

"We dedicate this building to national unity. This is a Federal building; not a state building, not an anthracite building, not a sectional building. This building has been built by the money of all the people. It stands in our midst as a symbol of national unity."

"One of the great problems of our national life is sectionalism. It is a natural inheritance. All were born as colonies or states before we were re-born as a nation. We are made up of many national strains. Whenever we look at this building we shall be reminded that we are not German-Americans or Irish-Americans or Polish-Americans or even Yankee-Americans—but just Americans. We shall be reminded of the great words of Webster: 'Union and liberty, now and forever, one and inseparable.'

"We dedicate this building to world peace. It is a symbol of our belief that peace is stronger than war, brotherhood than anarchy. We place it over against the bombings in China and Spain and say it will outlast these divisive and anarchic forces. Peace is promoted by understanding as is goodwill."

"Our community has a special function to perform in this regard. Mail will go from here to many countries of the old world. May they hear over the message of understanding—or cooperation—of international goodwill."

"Thus our community takes a step forward today toward goodwill—an appreciation of our national solidarity, toward international peace. As we dedicate this post office today we do so with the prayer:

Let me live in the house by the side of the road,
Where the race of men go by—
The men that are good, the men that are bad.

As good and as bad as I,
I would not sit in the scorners' seat
Nor hurl the cynic's ban,
I would live in a house (like this house) by the side of the road
And be a friend to man.

Site Changed Ten Times
Postmaster Guinan, in his address, recalled that the site of the post office has been changed ten times, since its establishment in the early days of the borough's history. He continued by saying that in 1891 free delivery service was established, and that John Jenkins, retired carrier who was present at the celebration, was one of the employees at that time. He also spoke of the long service records of retired carriers Daniel McCall and Michael Dwyer; former assistant postmaster William Clifford, and active employee John Knapp. It was of interest to learn from the postmaster's remarks that the salaries of postal employees have been raised from $600 to $2,100 per annum during the period that the local post office has been in existence. The building of the post office was a dream long cherished by many. Postmaster Guinan said, one in particular being the late Milton E. Crawshaw, assistant postmaster. In concluding he paid tribute to the honor guests and thanked them for their presence and participation in the program on the auspicious occasion.

Country Still Safe
Congressman Glidea, following his introductory remarks, reminded the assembly that "America is still safe when the flag is raised and meetings such as these are opened with prayer." He continued with a brief but cordial tribute of the post office department, and stated that from Postmaster General Farley down, the staff is motivated by a desire to serve.

Describing the building as the fruit of the Public Works Program, he lauded the project. In this respect he said that work must be had and that American citizens deserve from the government the right to work. "The biggest achievement of this administration," he continued, "is its Social Security Program." Later he said, "that which makes for the best of this community, make for the best of this country. This building is dedicated to do what you want it to do."

During the exercises, a telegram was read conveying the congratulations and felicitous wishes to Postmaster Guinan from Postmaster General Farley.

Before and after the program, the building was opened for public inspection, and many hundreds took advantage of the opportunity.

For the occasion a handsome flag draped stand was erected to the west of the entrance.

The dedication was an occasion of historic import to the community and will be long remembered by every person in the large gathering assembled for the occasion.

Storm Sweeps Part Of State

Philadelphia, June 27 (U.P.)—Eastern Pennsylvania's heat wave was broken today following torrential rains and high winds which caused widespread damage.

Creeks overflowed their banks, bridges were washed out and high-ways flooded when 3 1/2 inches of rain fell in less than three hours.

Dennis Piccone, 20, of Philadelphia, died after being overcome by the heat, and a motorman and four passengers of a trolley car were dazed when lightning struck the car, setting the roof afire.

At open air communion services for 4,000 Catholic law officers, 14 were overcome by the heat. Approximately 60,000 automobiles crossed the Delaware river bridge Sunday and were caught in the severe storm while returning from seashore points in the evening.

Two men were rescued from Beaver Creek, Lancaster county, after their home had been carried away by flood waters. Frank White, 55, and his son Curtis to tree trunks for an hour until Clingto Aspiril and Donald Graybill of New Providence, swam to their aid. One point of the Lincoln highway near Lancaster was covered with five feet of water during the height of the storm. A garage was lifted from its foundation at New Holland and dropped in a nearby yard by the high wind. Hall shattered windows at St. Stephen's Reformed church at New Holland, forcing cancellation of evening services.
